

LOCAL OVERFLOW.

Lettinger & Dugan will open their new rooms over Geddis's store in about a week, with a new line of pianos, sheet music and musical instruments.

Three packed houses witnessed the theatrical attractions at the Auditorium this week. The Russell Brothers, comedy actors, produced a light frothy, but mirth provoking bill the first two nights, and a somewhat sensational play, "New York Day by Day," was given last night.

Dr. F. W. Gwyer left his North pond summer home Monday, taking his family to New York in his Thomas touring car. He returned to Brattleboro Wednesday night having made the round trip of 450 miles easily in the three days. He left his machine here to be overhauled and stored for the winter, going to New York by train Thursday to take up his winter work.

Orrin Wilson of Halifax was hurt seriously shortly after noon today, on Organ street hill, near the Estey organ plant. He was driving down the hill with a load of spruce lumber, when a neck-yoke chain broke. In attempting to handle the team Mr. Wilson fell to the ground in front of the wagon and one wheel went over his leg, between the knee and thigh. He was taken to the Memorial hospital.

C. A. Cheney of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., was a Valley Fair spectator, also paying his annual visit to relatives. He went to Townshend by train this morning, and will return to his home this evening. Mr. Cheney held a responsible position with the Walter A. Wood mowing machine company for a long term of years, but now fills the office of president of the Peoples National Bank of Hoosick Falls.

An accident on the trolley line hindered the traffic for a short time last Sunday evening. The car due at West Brattleboro at 6:30 was speeding up West-ern avenue when the guard beneath one of the motor gears became unhinged and dropped down, digging into the ground and ploughing a furrow until it came to a standstill in front of C. S. Hopkins's house. It took half an hour to dig out the guard and start the car.

The Paton family, including Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Paton and their son, Professor Lewis B. Paton, left their Ames Hill summer home Monday for their home in Hartford, Conn., where Prof. Paton takes up his regular work in the theological seminary. Miss Julia B. Paton, formerly an assistant in the Brattleboro high school, who had spent several weeks with her parents during recovery from a severe illness, accompanied the family and will begin teaching in New Haven. Miss Paton returned from Constantinople early in the summer.

Asked to Call Special Village Meeting.

A petition was presented to the balliffs this forenoon asking them to call a special village meeting as soon as possible to see if the village will vote to purchase the Chestnut Hill reservoir system and the Sunset Lake reservoir system at the price of $295,000, "the sum now asked for the same." Another article is to see if the village will vote to instruct our town representative to take measures to secure proper and sufficient legislation to enable the village to construct or purchase a system of water works, and rescind the informal vote to instruct the water board to arbitrate, taken at the last meeting. A third article is to see if the village will vote to purchase the two systems named and to arbitrate as to the price. The petition is signed by O. E. Randall, A. J. Currier, E. G. Frost, W. C. Mitchell, G. Rockwell, O. P. Benson, C. I. Knapp, C. L. Spear, L. M. Stickney, I. L. Moore, N. H. White, C. M. Wheeler and W. H. Phillips. The balliffs will act upon the petition as soon as possible.

Death of William H. Ingalls.

William H. Ingalls, 66, for many years a well known resident of Townshend, died at his home in Westminister (Bellevue Falls) Sept. 19. He was a veteran of Company H, Eighth Vermont regiment, and after returning from the war was a blacksmith in Townshend until he moved to a house on the Saxtons River road in Westminister three years ago. He is survived by his second wife, who was Mrs. Lucy A. Edson of Bellevue Falls. He was past commander of Birchard post, G. A. R., and a member of Blazing Star Masonic lodge of Townshend.

Making Ready for the New State Administration.

Adjutant-General Gilmore is at Montpelier perfecting arrangements for the reception to Gov. Eliot S. D. Proctor to be given next Thursday evening, in the executive chamber at the state house by retiring Governor and Mrs. C. J. Bell and for the inaugural ball at the armory that will follow the reception. For this reception no formal invitations will be sent out, but state officials, members of the legislature and the public generally are invited.

At the suggestion of Gov. Bell the decorations will not follow the usual conventional lines, but will consist largely of the products of field and woods.

The mortality as the result of the recent typhoon which swept the port of Hongkong, China, has been increased to 10,000 persons. Six hundred Chinese fishing junks, the entire fleet, were lost.

The present outlook is that District Attorney John B. Moran of Boston will be the only candidate named for the gubernatorial nomination at the Massachusetts Democratic state convention to be held in Tremont Temple, Boston, next Thursday.

The largest size of fine paper is known as "antiquarian." The sheets are 33 by 31 inches.

Pasco in Peru is the highest town in the world, standing 14,735 feet above the sea level.

The Boston & Maine railroad company has placed an order for 50 coaches, part of them to be vestibule, and for eight dining cars, to be ready in season for the opening of next summer's travel. The order will amount to $250,000.

FAIR NOTES.

F. P. Knowles sold several Holstein cattle as a result of his exhibit.

Mrs. E. A. Jenks, owner of Rainbow, occupied a seat in the press stand Wednesday.

Walter Knight of Providence, R. I., was here to examine Morgans with a view to purchasing.

Aside from the drawing classes there were few oxen in evidence, but E. E. Johnson of Cornish, N. H., had a string of nine yoke of steers and oxen of various ages and sizes.

George F. Miller of Beville, Ohio, who came here expressly for the bench show, bought Chauncey Girl, a Boston bull, from Mrs. J. Edward Anderson of the Brookline, Mass., kennel for $100.

Henry Williams of Bridport, this state, a student at the high school here years ago, was an attendant throughout the fair. He is one of the successful Morgan horse breeders of Addison county.

A big Swiss bull got away from his keeper Wednesday afternoon and cantered up and down the boulevard in the rear of the grandstand. He did no mischief, but caused a lively scattering of men, women and children.

G. T. Copeland of Gloverville, N. Y., a former Brattleboro resident, was on hand again with his pup corn tent and apparatus. He disposed of 50 bushels of popped corn Wednesday and about 100 bushels in the three days. "That's chewing some," said he in referring to his output.

The greatest vaudeville attraction ever seen at the fair was the diving acts of the Norins, including fancy backward and forward dives from a height of 20 feet and a direct plunge from a tower 65 feet high. The other performances were of a high order and were well received, especially the exhibition of trained dogs.

The Brattleboro Retreat exhibited, but not in competition, a herd of Holsteins, two bulls and 10 cows, all registered. The swine were not brought from the Retreat Farm owing to the fact that all the pens had been taken by competitors. Additional accommodations will be provided for sheep and swine next year.

Manager Holley of the Glenfield Stock Farm boasted on Tuesday that he had the largest and the smallest sheep on the ground. When questioned he replied that his Leicester ram weighed nearly 400 pounds, but that he did not know the weight of his smallest Southdown, which was born on the grounds Monday night.

C. H. Lee of Lyndonville, who won first in the contest for matched pairs Wednesday, makes a specialty of handling road horses. An agent for a wealthy resident of a Connecticut city, who was here Wednesday, entered at once into negotiations for the purchase of the pair and it is probable that the trade will be closed within a day or two. It is understood that Mr. Lee placed a price of $1500 on the span.

All the special trains were crowded on Wednesday. The one which arrived from the north early in the forenoon consisted of 14 cars loaded with 1400 people and the trainmen said that others who intended to come were left at the stations. The Central Vermont train from the south carried 1250 people in 15 cars and the special Boston & Maine train from Springfield left at several stations people who had to come on the regular trains.

About 25 men were commissioned as police officers to serve during the fair, but they had practically nothing to do in their official capacity. John Rogers, the Pinkerton detective, who came from New York for the seventh consecutive year to look out for pickpockets, said before leaving town today: "I am perfectly amazed at the orderliness of the crowd at the Brattleboro fair. I never saw anything like it in all my experience." Mr. Rogers was accompanied by Detective Vedder.

Mrs. Carrie J. Nelson-Shackford of Ryegate was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. J. W. Gregg, during the fair. Mrs. Shackford took first premium and sweepstakes on dairy butter, making the fifth time she has won at Brattleboro. Since 1892 she has taken $400 in premiums on butter besides taking a medal at Paris in 1900. About 20 years ago she began farming, owning $5000 and supporting four small children. Years ago her debts were paid. Her children have grown to be worthy citizens of the state. Her farm now contains 115 acres of excellent land and fine buildings. She keeps 65 head of cattle and six horses. She probably has taken more first-class premiums on butter than any other farmer in the state and has proved that farming brings both profit and pleasure when properly done.

George E. Whitney of Burlington, the millionaire woolen manufacturer, was here Wednesday to see his horse, Burlington Maid, in the 2:17 race. Mr. Whitney is the owner of several fast racers and it was announced recently that he was willing to back his horse, Angus Pointer, for $25,000 against any other racer on the grand circuit. Angus Pointer has turned several miles this season under 2:05. The Bishop is another Whitney horse which has made a highly creditable showing. Mr. Whitney is remembered locally as the manager of the South Royalton base ball team of 15 years ago and later backed the team in Lebanon, N. H., composed largely of Holy Cross players. "Spike" Davis of the Brattleboro Athletics then played with Lebanon. Mr. Whitney has been chief sponsor for the Burlington base ball team in the northern league the last two years.

The daubers for the yellow journals would have had good material for their papers if they had witnessed a little scene which was enacted at the north side of the track late Wednesday afternoon. A tough customer who had evidently been imbibing became very abusive toward George E. Whitney, owner of race horses. Mr. Whitney finally turned and gave the T. C. two rounding slaps. The man quieted down temporarily but after Mr. Whitney went from the enclosure he followed with a big club and was only two steps behind when the horse fancier happened to turn. Mr. Whitney ordered the man to throw away the club, but he refused, brandishing his weapon threateningly. Whitney then gave him two staggering straight-arm jolts. The approach of spectators ended the affair, but Mr. Whitney's fighting blood was up and he declared that if the stranger came near the barn he would polish him until he was unrecognizable—or something to that effect.

H. R. Watson, who established the Forest Park Farm of Brandon, came from New York to attend the fair and two of his former farm managers, W. G. McClintock of Morrisville and Mr. Adams of Brandon, were also here. E. H. Hoffman of the Cahoon Farm at Lyndonville, Del., who made a large exhibit at the last fair, looked over the Morgans with a critical eye.

A. R. Tattam of Wilmington, Del., and John T. Wilkins of Connersville, Ind., who are interested in Morgan horses, were present Wednesday. H. H. Willard of Springfield, Mo., who was on the grounds the same day, is said to be the largest breeder of high grade road horses in America. At the Missouri state fair he exhibited 10 stallions in pairs and all trotted in 2:35 or better. Fred Davis of the Mountain View Farm at East Burke, owned by Mr. Darling of the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York, was here looking for a purchasable stallion.

E. D. Hinds, the veteran Morgan breeder of Pittsford, who has recently made sales at large prices, and Dr. J. H. Gaines of Newport, one of the owners of the Newport Stock Farm, greeted many horsemen. Dr. Gaines intended to bring here for exhibition Ray Tell, the fastest heavy stallion in the world, sired by Astell, world's record holder to a high sulky, who was sold for $105,000 as a three-year-old.

Let the Filipinos Come.

[Burlington Free Press.]

If it be true as reported, that the authorities of the Louisiana State university have refused to admit to that institution several young Filipinos who desired to enter for the purpose of making a study of scientific agriculture, the fact is most regrettable, and doubly so if the refusal was prompted by prejudice against the Filipinos as a colored race. Upwards of a hundred young Filipinos are now pursuing studies in this country to fit them for teachers and promoters in the Philippines. As the University of Vermont has never drawn any color line in the admission of students, it is safe to say that no Filipino youth will be denied admission to it on account of the tint of their skins, or previous condition.

Fighting for Peace.

The war which has been waged between the Dutch and the natives in Sumatra for more than a generation is sometimes reflected in battles on some of the other Dutch islands in the Banda group. Word has just been received of a fight between the Dutch and the natives on Hall, the next island to Java. In this engagement two princes and their women and children were captured and an entire native army of 400 men wiped out. The Dutch loss was four men killed and ten wounded. They seldom take any prisoners in these islands, the fighting is usually to the death, and the deaths are usually confined to the native men. It has sometimes been urged that what is needed to put down a rebellion is a firm hand—a war of extermination. Though the Dutch have been following out that policy for a great many years they have not as yet been able to secure peace in their East Indian possessions.—[Boston Herald.]
